Q & A

How does your background bring a unique perspective to your work?

Before becoming a Realtor, I spent 34 years running Leo Burke Furniture, a landmark business known for providing superior customer service and operating with the highest degree of integrity. I brought these values to my real estate career, and as a result, have gained many satisfied clients. In addition, I have nurtured close relationships with others in the real estate community, including closing attorneys, lenders, inspectors, tradesmen, and other Realtors, which are crucial to a smooth and profitable transaction.
